A Library of Universal Information THE NEW American Cyclopaedia.

A Popular Dictionary of General Knowledge. Edited by GEORGE RIPLEY and CHAS A. DANA, sided by a numerous select corps of writers, in all branches of Art Science and Literature. In 16 large volumes, 8vo. 750 double-column page each volume.

The leading claims to the public consid which the New American Cylopedia possess be briefly stated:

which the New American Cylopedia passesses may be briefly stated:

1. It surpasses all other works in the fullness and ability of the articless relating to the United States.

2. No other work contains so many reliable blographies of the leading men of this and other nations. In this respect it is far superior even to the more Bully Encyclopedia Britannica.

3. The best m nds in this country have been employed in enriching its pages with the latest data, and the most recent discoveries in every branch of manufactur, mechanics, and general science.

5. It is a library in itself where every topic is treated and where information can be gleaned which will enable a student, if he is so disposed, to consult other authorities, thus affording him as invaluable key to knowledge.

5. It is neatly printed, with readable type, on good paper, and contains a most conspicious index.

5. It is the only work which gives any thing approaching a creek descriptions of cities and towns of America, or embraces reliable statistices showing the wenderful growth of all sections.

Every one that reads, every one that mingles in society, is constantly meeting with allusions to subjects on which he needs and desires further information. In conversation, in trade, in professional life, on the farm, in the farmily, practical questions are continually arising, which no man, well read or not can always astisfactorily answer. If facilities for reference are at hand, hey are consulted, and not only is the carlosity gratified, and the stock of knowledge increased, but perhaps information is gained and deless are suggested that will directly contribute to the business success of the party conrefersional man, the farmer, the mechanic. In a nuntry like ours, where the humblest may be call it to responsible positions requiring intelligence ad general information, the value of such a work
